DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The furrier building is the largest structure on the block. Its lack of first floor windows and limited access address its basic function - security - even those areas that once were garage type openings are bricked up.

The building is five stories tall; the top story windows are large 5 panes x 5 panes in size with flat arched brick lintels.

The brick pattern on the walls of the building is the structure's most pronounced feature externally. The pattern is three rows, nine rows, with protruding brick in the three row courses. The recessed bricks are placed in header positions.

On the west side of the building there are flat brick columns constructed in brickwork that extend from the third floor to the fifth floor.

On the Franklin Street side of the building there are second and fifth floor windows; the fifth floor windows are large five panes x five pane windows with brick sills and large lintels.

There is a recessed running bond brick decoration above the fifth floor.

The building has a cement cornice of simple composition on all four sides of the flat roofed building.
